BC Government Non-Essential Travel Restrictions

Due to the rise in COVID-19 cases, the BC Government is restricting non-essential travel between three regional zones within the province.

The three regional zones are:

1. Lower Mainland and Fraser Valley (Fraser Health and Vancouver Coastal Health)
2. Northern/Interior (Northern Health and Interior Health, including Bella Coola Valley, the Central Coast and Hope)
 - Residents from the Hope area can travel to Chilliwack for essential goods and supplies
 - Residents from the Bella Coola Valley and Central Coast area can travel to Port Hardy for essential goods and supplies
3. Vancouver Island (Vancouver Island Health)

The BC Government has defined non-essential travel as “recreational” travel. Essential travel is still permitted for reasons such as:

- attending school or work.
- transporting commercial goods.
- returning to a principal residence.
- accessing child care.
- using health care or assisting someone in obtaining health care.

Noncompliance with the non-essential travel restrictions could result in $575 fine.

The formal order for the restrictions will remain in effect until Tuesday, May 25, the end of the May long weekend.
